STATE & METRO AREA PRESS RELEASE

For Immediate Release
March 25, 2021

Nevada adds jobs back in February; Unemployment rate continues to improve

CARSON CITY, NV - Employment in Nevada added back 2,400 jobs over the month as the state continues to recover. Jobs remain below typical levels, down 153,500 jobs since February 2020, for an annual decline of 10.6% according to the Nevada Department of Employment, Training and Rehabilitation's (DETR) February 2021 economic report. The total employment level in the State is 1,289,300. The state's unemployment rate in February is 8.3%, down from 8.5% in January and up 4.6 percentage points when compared to February 2020.

Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA) Employment (Seasonally Adjusted):

- Las Vegas employment increased by 1,300 jobs (0.1%) since January, a decrease of 145,600 jobs (-13.8%) since February 2020.
- Reno employment had an increase of 3,300 jobs (1.4%) since January, a decrease of 6,700 jobs (-2.7%) since February 2020.
- Carson City employment had an increase of 600 jobs (2.0%) since January, a decrease of 600 jobs (-1.9%) since February 2020.

"For the state as a whole, employment increased over the month, resulting in ten consecutive months of employment growth. Accommodation and food services added back the most jobs over the month, with the unadjusted gains concentrated in food services, which rose by 2,700 compared to 400 in accommodation. Construction employment rose sharply as well, particularly in the Las Vegas area, which is not uncommon given that construction has added employment in February for the past nine years. Nevada's unemployment rate declined slightly from January's revised level, but remains above eight percent. Broadly, the trend in February remains largely flat, and is similar to what we saw in January, with ongoing significant disruption highly concentrated in the Las Vegas area. Recent news that vaccine eligibility is expanding to the general population is encouraging, as is news that a large trade show has received approval for an in-person convention in early June." said David Schmidt, Chief Economist.

Nevada Statewide & Metro Area Labor Market Overview

February 2021

Published on March 25, 2021

In this release, we provide updates on our primary employment, unemployment, and unemployment insurance programs. This month's report continues to show the impact of COVID-19 on Nevada's labor market. Seasonally adjusted employment increased over the month, resulting in ten consecutive months of employment growth. For the state as a whole, looking at unadjusted estimates, the leisure and hospitality sector added the most jobs this month with the vast majority of gains occurring in the accommodation and food services sub-sector as vaccine eligibility is expanding to the general population, as is news that a large trade show has received approval for an in-person convention in early June. Additionally, state government continues to see rapid growth due to a rebound in state educational services (typically employment at public universities and community colleges). The construction sector continue to improve and added 2,200 jobs over the month unadjusted. This growth was reflected in the unemployment rate which improved slightly from 8.5 percent in January to 8.3 percent in February. In the State's metropolitan statistical areas (MSAs), Las Vegas's employment growth over the month closely reflects the statewide trends with jobs added over the month in leisure and hospitality, specifically the accommodation and food services sub-sector, and in construction. Additionally, Las Vegas realized notable growth in State government educational services. While the Reno MSA realized growth in the leisure and hospitality and state government sectors, most of its job growth over the month was seen in professional and business services. The job growth in professional and business services is likely attributable to an increase in hiring in temporary help services. Carson City increased unadjusted employment over the month, realizing the largest increase in service providing sectors. Although the labor market continues to improve, Nevada remains one of the states most impacted by the COVID pandemic. Vaccines have provided hope that the economy will have a stronger rebound in the second half of the year, though the months immediately ahead are likely to remain challenging.

Information on how to file an unemployment insurance or pandemic unemployment assistance claim, where to get updates from DETR, or what other services are available from the department can be found at the end of this write-up. Additional labor market information can be found on our website (<http://nevadaworkforce.com/>).

Unemployment Insurance

In February, 33,878 initial claims for unemployment insurance were filed in Nevada, a decrease of 9,192 claims, or 21.3 percent, from January when there were 43,070 claims. While a significant nominal decline, the month-over-month percentage change generally follows Nevada’s seasonal trend seen in years past.

Activity for Nevada’s regular program saw slight increases across most measures in January, a reflection of the rise in initial claims seen over the last two months. The number of regular program weeks claimed and compensated increased from December, resulting in $100.5 million in benefit payments, a slight increase of 1.7 percent from a month ago. Final payments, also known as benefit exhaustions, fell to 14,169, the fourth consecutive month of month-over-month declines.
